

Presenters:

William L. Chapman is an attorney at Orr & Reno P.A. He represents national, regional, and local media organizations and journalists in access cases under the First Amendment, the Freedom of Information Act, New Hampshire's Right-to-Know Law, and in defending against defamation and privacy claims.

Joseph W. McQuaid is the publisher of the New Hampshire Union Leader and New Hampshire Sunday News. In a 50-year career with the papers, he has been a reporter, photographer, and editor and has reported from Afghanistan, Saudi Arabia, and Europe.

Joseph Steinfield is a partner at Prince Lobel in Boston and Of Counsel to the Law Office of Thomas R. Hanna in Keene, New Hampshire. He has represented media clients for more than 40 years and regularly serves as a mediator and arbitrator. He is also a monthly columnist for the Monadnock Ledger-Transcript and the Keene Sentinel.

David Tirrell-Wysocki is executive director at the Nackey S. Loeb School of Communications. Before joining the school, he was an Associated Press reporter in New Hampshire for 33 years.

Allie Morris covers politics, government and energy for the Concord Monitor. Before joining the Monitor in 2014, she was a reporter/producer at the PBS NewsHour in Washington D.C.

Josh Rogers is the senior political reporter and Statehouse reporter at New Hampshire Public Radio. Before joining NHPR in 2000, he lived in New York, where he worked for a number of magazines.

Adam Sexton is an anchor and political reporter at WMUR. Before joining WMUR in 2007, he worked at television stations in Oregon and California.

Leah A. Plunkett is the Director of Academic Success & Associate Professor of Legal Skills at the University of New Hampshire School of Law. Professor Plunkett's scholarship explores how laws affect core concerns of people's daily lives: education, financial stability, and familial relationships.

Geanne Belton, an attorney and former journalist, is a professor at City University of New York's (CUNY's) Baruch College and CUNY's Graduate School of Journalism. She teaches journalism and social media law and ethics, news reporting and writing, and news literacy.

| 8:30 – 9:00 a.m. Check-in 9:00 – 9:05 a.m. Opening Remarks/Introduction 9:05 – 9:25 a.m. Historical Overview of the Freedom of the Press(Presenters: William Chapman, Esq. and Joseph Steinfield, Esq.)In order to understand the Freedom of the Press and the modern challenges facing it, it is essential to understand its historical development. This historical overview will discuss the role of the press and the protections it enjoyed in colonial America and the early period of the Free Press Clause during which it was most often invoked to prevent prior restraint of the press. 9:25 – 10:15 a.m. Panel #1: Modern Challenges Facing the Freedom of the Press(Presenters: Joseph W. McQuaid, William Chapman, Esq. and Joseph Steinfield, Esq.)This panel will raise and discuss important modern challenges facing the Freedom of the Press including the impact of “fake news,” presidential administration approaches to the press, and how modern statutes like New Hampshire’s wiretapping statute impact journalism. The panel will invite active audience participation and tackle additional questions and issues posed by audience members. | 10:15 – 10:30 a.m. Break 10:30 – 11:25 a.m. Panel #2: The Reality of Newsgathering and Reporting Today(Presenters: David Tirrell-Wysocki, Allie Morris, Josh Rogers and Adam Sexton)This panel will help the audience understand the daily challenges facing the media and how the dynamic changes and heightened disrespect and distrust brought about in the 2016 campaign affect coverage of politics and other news stories. The panel will address the intersection of journalistic objectivity and the role of advocacy in journalistic publications. The panel will present the experiences and viewpoints of several reporters and solicit their input on important questions such as whether reporters have an agenda when covering politics and what modern challenges pose the greatest risks to a free press. 11:25 – 12:20 p.m. Panel #3: Toward a “Digital Citizenship” Tool-Kit(Presenters: Professor Leah Plunkett and Professor Geanne Belton)Young people and adults need to cultivate new skills to navigate fake news and other information quality challenges that threaten their ability to understand digital media and participate fully in our democracy. In some states, new laws and regulations requiring “digital citizenship” in K-12 public schools are being put on the books or proposed in legislatures. There is also no consensus on whether such education is effective and, if so, what must be taught to create informed and empowered digital citizens capable of protecting a free press and our democracy more broadly.This panel unpacks these questions by considering: The current landscape of digital citizenship state laws &amp; regulations &amp; other initiatives outside of law/reg; a deeper dive into a sample of digital citizenship instructional materials; an exploration of how different stakeholders (government, schools, private sector, etc.) could collaborate on digital citizenship instruction. |
